B (RTHOLDPS STATUE OF LIBERTY.

FRANCE'S MAGNIFICENT GIFT COMPARED WITH OTHER WORKS OF LIKE CHAR-

It must be confessed that the American people seem to appreciate imperfectly the magnificent gift of the sister republic—Bartholdi's statue of Liberty. This monument of modern art is intended to rise 225 feet above the waters of New York harbor—that is, consider-ably higher than the majority of church steeples—the plan including a pedestal 100 feet in height. This ought to have been completed long ago, and it was only quite recently that the contract was given out. Perhaps it would not have been given out. have been given out even so soon had not France begun to lose patience. Various influential French papers have been proposing to retain the statue in Paris as a grand national monument—

Paris as a grand national monument—since the Americans manifest such lordly indifference to the magnificent gift. The Parisians are quite onamored of the statue, and a subscription would certainly be raised with the greatest case in that city for the purpose of creeting the pedestal.

The statue is certainly one of the wonders of the modern world—a bronze Titaness more than 100 feet in stature, holding in one hand a phares, as did the colossus of Rhodes—and diadomed with stars of electric light. Once she is placed upon her pedestal, people will cross the oceans and continents to behold her!

More beautiful works of art indeed, there must have been—like that chrys-elephantme statue at Olympus of Zeus, which made the Roman Paulus Æmilius tremble when he looked upon it; and many of the Greek colossi wore no doubt more exquisitely wrought, and cost no less. The famous mude figure of the sun-god at Rhodes—which we may know did not lastraddle the harportion which no modern sculptor has ever thoroughly learned. The statue of Pallas Athona upon the Aeropolis was only forly-six feet high; but the beauty of the figure probably exceeded anything which modern art can produce; for it was wrought in the golden age of Greek sculpture.

In size also the statue has been exceeded. The Asiaties have ever out-invalled the Occidental races if not in actual magnitude of artistic conception, certainly in the realization of gi-gantic lancies. At Kampong there is an alol of 150 feet in length; the cirer aference of its brazon head alone is twenty feet. Idols taller than the Rhodian colussus might almost be termed common in the Orient. A Sinmose idol 200 foot in height has been described by modern travolers. But ne Romans even possessed somo stat nes of marble nearly as large as Bartholdi's statue of bronze-witness the colossal figure of Nero, by Zenodorous, 120 feet high, which gave the name Colosseum to the great amplitheatro which it overlooked. Twenty-four ole-phants were employed in after days by Hadran to remove it. The Egyptian colossal, being scated figures mostly, do not use to such altitudes; but they were often fifty or sixty feet high, and the weight of each of the colossi known. to us as the "statues of Monnon," called by the Atabs Chaum and Tama, has been estimated at 2,611,995 pounds. The original height of the Sphinx was only about fifty teet; but the body of the monster was 117 feetlong. Only an earthquake could have destroyed the statue of Oxymandias, (now broken off at the waist); the hieroglyphics engraved upon its lunbs are so enormous that a man may walk about within the characters as in a dry water course. Neither in artistic beauty nor in actual size does Bartholdi's statuo exseed all other colosul figures al-though it overtops Nebuchadnezzar's wonderful statute of gold, which was mady feel in height. But the statue their must only be regarded as the upper portion of one predigious structure. Pedestal and statue together ture Pedestal and statue together should form a single marvel unequaled in the history of crt. Such a work as scarcely a statue, strictly speaking, but a tower of stone and bronze, erected with a two fold purpose, both moral and utilitarian; and modern science louds it a sublimity which even the perfection of Greek art could not give. It is a mirsele of modern bronze architecture rather than of statuary; and affords beautiful proof how indus-rial act may be rendered imposing by the application of resthetics. Is not the idealized figure, illuminating the darkness for the slops of all nations, a grand expression of reverence for Wo-man Woman, who exerts such influence upon modern society, and by whose love, as by a phares, mon's lives are more or less directed? The colossus of the antique world was the figure

WEAR AND TEAR OF DOCTORS AND PREACHERS. New York Post

DECATUR, ILLINOIS, MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1883.

Sussified solitary thinking is some-thing of which very few men are capa-ble. To keep up what is called active-mindedness nearly everyone needs somebody to talk to. Conversation with a friend is enough for most, but those who have more to say find a sermon or a who have more to say find a sermon or a magazine article just the kind of intellectual stimulus they need. What probably most wears on a clergyman's nerves are his pastoral duties, which do not consist simply in consoling people in great trials, but in listening to their tussy accounts of small things. Ninetenths of a minister's patients, like a doctor's, do not know what is the matdoctor's, do not know what is the mat-ter with them, and consult a physi-cian largely because they take comfort in talking to anybody about themselves, and doctors and clergymen are the only persons—who are bound to listen to them. A professor or teacher is somewhat similarly situated. His business is the most wearing of human occupations—that of putting knowledge into heads only half willing to receive it, and persuading a large number of people to do their duty to whom duty is

To these men a summer school of philosophy or theology, or something else must be repose of the best sort. It gives light work of the kind they love, free from all magging, and in good air and fine scenery. At such schools, too, one finds uses for "papers" that no periodical will print, and which no audience would assemble to listen to in a city in the busy part of the year, and to many men an audience of any sort, interested or uninterested, is a great luxury.

BOYS AND GIRLS. eorge Alfred Townsend,

"I was sitting in my room at a prominent hotel a few days ago, about noon, when I heard voices just outside my window slats; the slats were slut, but from within are open, so as to see and hear very plainly. There sat on the piazza a young girl hardly sixteen and at build her were three or four young Orientalists, not old enough to take up to the city to do business, ranging from sixteen to seventeen years old. In the girl's lap was a pug dog, and one of these young men, affecting to pat the dog on the head, would with the return motion of the hand chuck the girl under the chin.

As the conversation proceeded it was plain that all three boys were attempting to mislead that girl.

Then I took a look at the girl.

Her voice was hard and had that hard, grinding throat inflection not uncommon in the city of New York among girls of the remeller class. My judicens. girls of the rougher class. My indignation had been somewhat excited by these young men, but when I took a close view of the girl again. I thought to my-solf, "Whore did that face come from?"

Out of some asylum or hospital, or possibly, house of correction!

It was the hardness of the face that had tempted the boys, so I banged the shutter to make them all got away from my vicinity and stopped moralizing on the subject at all.

All these examples spread when you

Carrent Harneson's view of the tar iff discussion seems to be the view taken by many of the leading Democrats in the south. Senators Jonns, of Louisiana, George, of Mississippi, and Pugh, of Alabama, have recent ly been interviewed, and each has declared in the strongest terms, that it will not do to make the tariff a leading issue next year. Mr. Jonas mays: "It will rain as if it (the tariff) denominates the struggle." Mr. Pugh opposes "any further discusnion of this twiff question until after the election (4) of 1884." Mr. George says: "The tariff must be let severely alone until after we have elected a President."

Mahone's Chances. WASHINGTON, Sept. 21.-A prominent onti-Mahoue Virginian was asked to-day what was the real aspect of political affair, in his state. He said the fact was he did not know. The Readjuster leaders were as confident as ever, but on the other hand his party, the Funders, were more onconraged and confident than at any time since the accession of the Mahone party to power. He declared that this was the most important political contest in Virginia since the war, for the reason that if Mahone earried the state now he would not only have a Readjustor Legislature but would secure recognition at the next National Republican Convention He would come with a solid delegation and would be admitted as a matter of course, with the acquirecence of the administration party. He would not only in that event have the voic of Virginia at his command, but of North Carolina and of other South ern states where the Independent leaders were waiting to see the outcome of his movement. He might command enough of Note in the convention, and this might prac tically prime the next Presidential candidate Mrs. Jameson. It appears that Gowan, for the Republican party. also placing broken pieces of glass by heir holes was another romedy. But these remedies are not effective. The rats may leave their old holes and make fresh ones in other parts of the house they don't however, leave the premise for good. I thought I would try another experiment-one I had not heard of before. One evening I set a large wire cago rat-trap, attaching inside a most so luctive piece of strongly smelling cheese, isfaction, that I had succeeded in trapping a very large rat, one of the largest I ever seen, which, after I had besmeared him with tar, I let leose into his favorite run. The next morning I tried again, equally big fellow, and served him in the same manner. I could not follow these two tar-besineared rats into their numerous runs, to see what would happen; but it is reasonable to assume that they oither summoned together all the mem bers of their community, and by their crest-fallen appearance gave their com-rades silent indications of the misfortunes which had so suddenly befalle them; or they that frightened their brothren away, for they one and all forsook the place and fled. The experiment was eminently successful. From that day in 1875 till now, 1888, my house, ancient though it is, has been entirely free from rats; and I believe that there is no remody equal to this one, if you can atch your rat alive. They never came back to the house alive. THE SELECTION OF PICTURES

THE MAROA TRAGEDY.

Fatal Ending of the Marca Shooting Affray of Sept. 6th.

The not unexpected news of the death of Joseph Cooper, the respected and wellto do farmer, who was shot through the left breast with a 38-calibre Smith & Wessen revolver at Maron, on Thursday evening, Sept. 6th, by John Adams, a policeman, was received in Decatur Saturday night at about 7 o'clock, Mr. Cooper, who had lingered between life and death for 16 long and weary days, died of transmatic erysipelas, and passed away peacefully with his wife, children and friends at his bedside. The deceased was a man well liked by the people of Maroa and vicinity and all vied with each other in the performance of kindly deeds that would in any manner administer to his comfort. But the deadly bullet had passed through his body, and though it was removed and the best of surgeons had cared for him, and his wife and triends had remained with him constantly, friends had remained with him constantly, all went for naught except to prolong his life a few brief days.

It will be remembered that Mr. Cooper was in Decatur on Sept. 6th, and had attended the county fair then in progress. He was a man addicted to the moderate Bohemian eigars and you will get the best nickel smokers.

You can save by buying boots and shoes now at Dinneon & Doyle's boot and shoes stere.

On the night of the 6th Sheriff Foster and Deputy Manzy drove post-haste to Maros in a close carriage and took Adams in custody. They arrived none too soon for on all sides there were heard ugly mutterings among the indignant people, who felt and averred that the shooting was unprovoked and that the deed was a cold-blooded and that the deed was a cold-blooded marder. It was feared that Adams would be lynched if he remained in the town, and the sheriff and his deputy brought ton farm near Nuntic, and both were on the prisoner to Decatur and lodged him in the county jail at 5 o'clock Friday morning, where he has since been and now is in confinement. THE FEELING AT MAROA. On receiving news of the death Coroner On receiving nows of the death Coroner Bendure at once made arrangements to go to Maroa to hold an inquest. He was accompanied by Jacob B. Bullard, the undertaker, W. C. Bullard, and by Judge Nelson, counsel for Adams, who made the trip in a close carriage. The coroner arrived at Maroa at 10 o'clock, and found the streets of the town filled with man own at that late hear, and the sole topic even at that late hour, and the sole topic of conversation was the death of Cooper. Engaging Constable Huff a jury was secured by the corone from among the best known citizens of Maroa. Their names are H. B. Smith, foreman; Dr. E. A. Morgan, who attended Cooper through his sufferings; Thomas Jenison, Poter Bennett, John Smelz and Wm. Phures. The jury was sworn, after which they yowed the body in the chamber where Cooper lay since the evening he received his mortal wound. Mr. Bullard then took The ladies of the First M. The feeling at Muroe Saturday night was very strong against Adams, and had the primer been in the town it would have taken but little talk to have turned the moving mass of indignant men into a a dangerous Judge Lynch court. When Tur house and lot, 40 feet front and Tun house and lot, 40 feet front and the coroner left there were a hundred 152 feet deep, on the southeast corner of men at the stable to see him off, and one of the party said, "If we had Adams, the here we'd string him West Main and Monroe streets, opposite

Sunday evening it was decided to clumpe the hour of holding the inquest, and it was commenced at 8 o'clock in the ber of persons were summened as witnesber of persons were summoned as witnes-es, but only 8 were examined. These were Dr. E. A. Morgan, John Huwkins, Mark Tezer, S. M. Adams, Joseph Listen, Michael Grady, and two other citizens who either attended Mr. Cooper or wit-nessed the shooting. All of the witnesses testified to the same thing that Cooper was shot by Adams on the street on the evening of Seut. 6th in Maron, and that evening of Sept. 6th in Maron, and that there was no appearance that the deed was done in self-defense. After a short consultation the jury drew up and r turned a verdiet in the following form:

A Dreadful Fall, A Mean Trick. Sunday forencon at 11 o'clock, Frankie Stevens, aged 5 years, a beautiful little girl, the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Curry, who occupy the Dodson rooms over 146 Merchant street and keep a private bearding house, received a fall accidentally which may result in death. At the rear of the rooms is a lattice-covered porch about five feet square with a door opening on a steep stairway leading down to the alley. The stairway has no his trust, and has made off with nearly protection on the outside except a light half of the money. It is known that he hand-railing. Little Frankie went out of | sold $130 worth of tickets. He left the the door in something of a hurry at the city Thursday night, without settling up, hour stated, and as she stepped down off and has not since been seen or heard of the porch she lost her balance in some manner and fell headlong off the stairway and under the railing, her body striking upon the right side of her face and on her chest on the cobble stone pavement below, a distance of 14 feet. She was instantly rendered senseless. Will. Chandler, at Wood Bros.', witnessed the fall and he picked up the little girl for dead and carried her to the Curry apartments where she gurgled in a spasmodic way and stiffened in his arms. Drs. A. R. Small and Cass Chenoweth were summoned and they did what they could for ier. She was visited this forenoon by a REPUBLICAN reporter and found to be glement. conscious, though suffering much pain. The Prolics of a Day. The right side of her face is badly bruised and scratched, but the surgeous say there are no fractures. The danger of concus-

The mare jerked herself away from the buggy and ran four miles west where she was stopped and brought back to the bill and turned over to Mr. Wells. The two men limped home, leading the mare, and Sunday Mr. Wells walked to Decatur to take care of the wreeked buggy and look up lost portions of the harness. Evidently Niantic roadsters are unused to road-earts.

The Contest Case Dismissed. In the county court this forenoon the ense of Bradford K. Durfee vs. G. M. Wood, better known as the "contested election case," came up and was finally disposed of. C. C.
